PATHS Programming Internships at UChicagoGRAD

Application Deadline: August 16, 2019

Are you a Ph.D. student in the humanities or humanistic social sciences who is interested in shaping the professional development programming available on campus? Apply to be a PATHS (Professional Advancement and Training for Humanities Scholars) Intern for the 2019-20 academic year. As an intern, you'll coordinate communications, prepare guides and resources, participate in program development, and build relationships with students, faculty, and staff. Hours and schedule are flexible, with interns typically working about 5 hours per week. For more details or to apply, please view the job posting in GRAD Gargoyle Job posting #65779.

Pitch Your Own Academic-Year Internship

Application Deadline: July 26, 2019

PROFESSIONAL ADVANCEMENT AND TRAINING FOR HUMANITIES SCHOLARS

Ph.D. students in the Humanities Division, Divinity School, and Social Sciences Division are invited to apply for funding ($6000) for self-designed internships through PATHS and UChicagoGRAD's Graduate Global Impact (GGI) "Pitch" internship program. Academic-year internship projects should start in fall quarter, total at least 250 hours, and take place within a nonprofit or start-up organization. Please note that this round of funding is only open to Ph.D. students in the divisions listed above. Any other interested students (or any humanities Ph.D. students seeking to design summer internships) should apply via the regular GGI Pitch competition in February 2020. For more information on how to apply or how to find an internship host, please email cwiersema@uchicago.edu.

PATHS Internships at the Smart Museum of Art

Are you a current Ph.D. student seeking experience in a museum setting? Do you have excellent writing, research, editing, and organizational skills? Consider applying for the following PATHS internship opportunities at the University of Chicago's Smart Museum for the 2019/2020 academic year.

Four positions are available, each with a stipend of $6,000.

More information about the individual positions and eligibility requirements can be found in the job postings at gradgargoyle.uchicago.edu.
