CHILD CARE/SCHOOL REFERRAL SERVICES

Action for Children. 312-823-1100. Action for Children provides a childcare resource and referral service that offers unique support for working parents. A database helps parents explore childcare options for children from 6 weeks to 12 years old. Action for Children also provides information about childcare assistance programs and tax credits. (Students typically do not qualify for assistance programs but can take tax credits.)

Alternative Schools Network Provides a directory of preschool through high school schools and educational programs.

Care.com This national site claims 4 million users, with options sortable by zip code. It can be used by both those seeking and providing care—for kids, but also for pets and seniors. Background checks available.

Childcarecenter.us currently provides a total of 119,348 licensed childcare centers and 157,105 home daycare providers. Find providers in your zip code or use the map below to browse by state, county, city, etc.

GreatSchools.org Find parent reviews, test scores and other data on schools you might be considering for your school-aged child.

Hyde Park Neighborhood Club 5480 S. Kenwood. 773-320-3620 or email sdivan@hpnc.org. Attend one of their frequent in-person or Zoom info sessions or schedule a one-on-one consultation. Early Childhood Specialist Dr. Sarah Diwan can provide your family with individualized referrals for daycare centers, home daycares, nannies, and nanny shares, as well as professional development and mentorship to caregivers. HPNC's Childcare Information and Referral Program is funded by a grant from the Childcare Initiative of UChicago and UChicago Medical Center.

Illinois Cares for Kids. Gives a comprehensive listing of area childcare and early education options, along with ratings.

UChicago K-12 Initiatives The UChicago's Provost Office sponsors this initiative, including publishing the "K-12 Initiatives Educational Resource Guide" with a breakdown on area options. The guide includes both private and public schools--though it doesn't include Pre-K 12initiatives@uchicago.edu for further information.

Lake Michigan Association of Independent Schools. Many of the Chicago area independent schools are a part of this organization.

Sittercity.com is America's largest, most easily accessible database for babysitters and nannies. The website offers 100,000 caregivers for 20 major markets—including Chicago, of course. If desired, this site can also provide background checks, paycheck processing and contracting guidance.

Sunshine Illinois Accountability Project Government site contains licensing compliance information on current State licensed Day Care Providers, and school report cards, organized by zip code.

UChicago Human Resources provides referrals through the company Perspectives for all "university employee families." provost.uchicago.edu/perspectives

PUBLIC SCHOOLS, PreK-12th Grade

Children are initially registered in their neighborhood school, based on home address. However, it is also possible to apply for admission to other schools. Some slots are offered based on applications and student test scores, and others are on a lottery system. The general website for the entire district is CPS.edu Here are some pages of particular interest:

Chicago Public Schools (C.P.S.) Search the on-line directory to find a school of interest. The directory shows neighborhood school boundaries, with links to school “report cards” giving student demographics, test scores, and parent survey results. Some limited charter school information is also available.

Chicago Public Schools Preschool Programs. Early Learning Hotline: 312/229-1690. Information about free- and fee-based preschool and kindergarten options throughout the public school system.

CPS Office of Academic Enhancement 773-553-2060, gocps@cps.edu This location on the general CPS site explains admission process for CPS magnet, charter, gifted or selective enrollment schools. You also use their online application for any school other than your neighborhood school.

UChicago K-12 Initiatives Publishes a guide to area elementary education, which includes a good section on navigating CPS, with a list of the nearby neighborhood schools.

MUSEUMS

Chicago's many museums are a great educational and recreational activity for families. However, admission can be expensive (free museums/days are noted as we know them.) If you will be using a museum frequently, you may want to purchase a membership as a cost-saving measure. Many museums also offer (sometimes unpublished) discounts for educators or students, and free or reduced-price days, (especially in Sept and Feb) so check their websites or ask. The Chicago Public Library has a program called "Museum Passports" that lets you borrow a free admission pass for 4 to a museum, accessible online. And If you have a LINK or WIC card, you qualify for deeply discounted "Museums for All" fares.
